Santa Barbara City College

Film and Media Studies

2017-18

Associate in Arts Degree in Film and Media Studies

The Film and Media Studies major, leading to an AA degree, focuses on historical and critical studies in the field of film. The program is designed to introduce students to film literature and criticism and to provide them with a basic knowledge of motion picture history, including the work of major American and international directors. Electives enhance this course of study by exposing students to the principles, technology and techniques of motion picture production. The goal of the program is to encourage a critical attitude toward moving image media through theoretical studies, critical analysis and historical and cross-cultural examination.

Careers in Film Studies

Graduates of the Film and Media Studies program have the knowledge and skills to enter careers as professionals in the fields of film, video, television and digital media. Depending on the area of specialization they choose to pursue through their electives, students graduate with training to work as screenwriters, cinematographers, directors, editors, and/or producers. Graduates are also qualified to continue their studies of film in a four-year college or university. The Film and Media Studies program at SBCC has an excellent record of course articulation and student transfer to the University of California, Santa Barbara and campuses throughout the CSU system as well as top four-year film schools such as UCLA, USC, AFI and Cal Arts.
